

CLARKE MEMORIAL TROPHY

The Clarke Memorial Trophy is a bronze statuette of an American Indian carrying a rifle and with an eagle, wings spread, alighting on the Indian's upraised arm. The trophy was purchased in 1927 from a bequest to the NRA by CPT Edwin H. Clarke, USA, to be awarded to the competitor from Civilian Military Training Camp or Reserve Officers Training Corps in the President's Match.

Match Conditions:

- 1927 The high-scoring competitor from CMTC or ROTC in the President's Match fired during the National Matches.
- 1931 The High-Scoring Civilian competitor (including CMTC in the President's Match).
- 1951 The high-scoring Civilian competitor in the President's Match.
- 1970 The high-scoring Civilian competitor in the NRA National High Power Rifle Championship.
- 1978 An aggregate of scores fired in the Crescent Cup Match, the Appreciation Cup Match, and Cavalry Cup Match and the Crowell Trophy Match.
