

RWS TROPHY

The RWS Challenge Trophy was originally provided for an international postal match among the teams from the United States, Great Britain and Germany. The trophy takes its name from the German name of the donor, Rheinische-Westfalischen-Sprengstoff. In 1939 it was re-designated as an individual award and now is awarded to the Intermediate Senior Champion in the NRA National Smallbore Conventional 3-Position National Championships.

Match Conditions:

- 1933 Teams of ten men, 40 shots per man at 50 meters on the international 50 meter smallbore target, five minutes for each series of five shots, any smallbore rifle using .22 caliber rimfire cartridges, metallic, sights, all prone shooting.
- 1939 Re-designated for the American RWS Match for individual competition. Course of fire 40 shots at 50 meters, prone, metallic sights.
- 1981 Re-designated for the Men's Air Pistol Champion in the NRA United States International Shooting Championships. Course of fire 60 shots Air Pistol.
- 1994-97 Withdrawn from competition.
- 1998 Re-designated for the Intermediate Senior Champion 3-Position in Outdoor at the NRA National Smallbore Conventional Championships. The course of fire is 240 shots - 40 shots prone, standing and kneeling with metallic sights and any sights.
- 2008 Target changed to the NRA A-23/5 target.
