

NATIONAL TROPHY FOR THE UNITED STATES INTERCLUB GALLERY CHAMPIONSHIPS

The trophy, presented by the NRA, was first awarded for smallbore rifle competition in 1913, but was withdrawn from competition between 1939 and 1976.

Match Conditions:

1913-39 Match conditions fluctuated between metallic sights and any sights, but always consisted of a team of 10 shooters from the prone position, and counted the high five team members for team score. Matches were fired at 75 feet, shooting 20 shots for record with limited sighters. Teams fired a series of weekly matches and sent their scores and targets to NRA for tabulating and judging.

1976 Conditions of fire changed when the trophy was returned to competition in 1976; the course of fire changed to 10 shots prone, sitting, kneeling and standing, at 50 feet, any sights, by a four member team to be fired in the National Sectional Championships
