

WHISTLER BOY TROPHY (High Power)

The Whistler Boy Trophy is one of two identical bronze statuettes representing a young boy standing barefoot, hands in pockets with his head tilted back, whistling. The two trophies were donated to the NRA in 1931 by Grover A. Hughes of Youngstown, OH. Both were in competition from 1931 until 1963 for junior smallbore rifle matches at the National Matches. In 1978, this trophy was returned to competition as the award for the winning team in the Junior State Association High Power Rifle Team Match. The twin to this trophy was first offered the same year in the corresponding Junior Smallbore Rifle Team Match (see Whistler Boy Trophy (Smallbore) for previous winners).
