

SPORTS AFIELD TROPHY

The Sports Afield Trophy was presented by SPORTS AFIELD magazine to the Open Winner of the NRA National High Power Rifle Silhouette Championship in 1974. These Championships were held for the first time in 1973 and the trophy was awarded retroactively to that year's National Champion. Constructed with a base of burlled California walnut, the Sports Afield Trophy depicts the desert-and-mountain terrain of the Southwest, where silhouette shooting began in the United States. The walnut and design were obtained by Edward "Pete" Brown of SPORTS AFIELD, with the woodworking and placement of figures by Edward D. Andrus of the NRA staff.

Match Conditions:

- 1973 Aggregate of two times over the Mexican National High Power Course (10 shots each at chickens at 200M; turkeys at 385M; and rams at 500M) and once over the U.S. National Match Silhouette Course (10 shots each at chickens, turkeys and rams with the addition of 10 shots at javelina at 300M).
- 1975 Changed to 120-shot aggregate of three times over the U.S. Club Match Silhouette Course.
